For the New-Yerk Tribune. THE SUN LOOKED DOWN. THE Sun looked down on a summer bower, Where, mingled with laughing gleams, was flung The trembling shadow of many a flower, And the clustering grapes o'er the arch that hung Had bered their cheeks to the mellow light, And, under that bower, a maiden bright Peered out through the leaves with her eyes of

The floating curls of her golden hair Waved light in the shadows that o'er them fell; Youth's roses and lilies were nestling there, And happiness breathed in her bosom's swell And her dimpled check, and her azure eye Were teuched with a glow more glad and deep,

As the visions of Memory floated by. Some burning hope had aroused her soul, For still as the leaves to the light breeze stirred And fluttered her heart like a humming-bird And then, as they paused, with lips apart, She bent for the sound an eager ear;

A halo unwonted around her gleamed, Pure as if won from the realins above, And, doubly beautiful, there she seemed, Nursing her visions of early love.

The Sun looked down on the Ocean's breast, And he yielded a gleam to each foaming crest, And traced bright hues on the flashing spray; And under those waves, with his piereing ray, Onward he gianced through the waters deep, Where, pillowing his head on the sea-flowers, lay A youth, on the ocean bed, asleep.

Calm, as a child to rest composed, On his cold strange couch his form was cast; But his hazle eyes, though half unclesed, On the things of earth had looked their last. Life's loveliest lines were lingering there; But the glow of his cheek had passed away,

And, backward washed from his forehead fair, His chestnut locks on the white sands lay. Pale were his gentie lips, and mute, And the rainbow tinted ocean lute, Beside him murmored a requiem low

Mr. L. had only left a moment to take the bettle he had mixed into the into the room found the child with his clothes saturated with vitriol; they dropped in pieces when given, and medical aid called in, but of no avail It appeared he had swallowed a quantity, and survived it three hours. An inquest was death returned. Not the least blame was attached to Mr. L. as it appeared he was using the acid at the time, and had not done with it when the accident occurred. The little boy had been playing in the yard, and had come in at the back when his father's back was turned, and had in similar bottles in the shop. The occurrence took place on Saturday, the 31st ultimo, at six o'clock in the evening, and the child died at byshire furnaces, with satisfactory results. It appears that the costly fuel and labor required for purification of the ore from sulphur, and phosphorus, and subtle elements, create its high mar-ket value, and these being all electro-negative, have induced the new process, whereby the impure stream of metal, after flowing from the blast, is in its moment of consolidation, subjected to a dling, they are readily extracted. The London blacksmiths, it is stated, have tested this iron af-ter a single rebeating, and pronounce it the best metal in the market. By the same process an rate red heat, and that gentleman is understood to have stated that in a low hours the metal was converted into steel. Should these facts prove what they seem, they are calculated to affect most seriously this important branch of our trade. [Newcastle Advertiser.

A DREAM.—The importance of individual action and value of the unit constituting large sums, is very faithfully and eloquently illustrated in the annexed dream, which, at a meeting in Ohio for the promotion of the cause of education. Dr. Beecher related:—He said he had a dream, which like other dreams did not wholly explain itself, and in which some of the natural objects had the power of speech. He was travelling near the sources of the Menongahela, and in pensing over a rough country, at every short dis-tance he met a little stream which he could step over; but all of them were going the same way At last he asked one where he was going "Why," replied the little rill, "I am going to Now-Orleans. I heard the people there want a great canal a thousand miles long and fifteen hundred feet wide, and I am going to help to make it." "And pray what can you do?" "I don't know what I can do, but I snall be there." And so saying, he hurried on. He came to another, and asked the same question, and received the same enswer. All were hurrying on to make the grand canel, on which the steamships of the West, with their heavy burdens, were to be transported. At the heads of the Alleghany, the Sciote, and the Mississippi, he found thousands more of fitful streams, and which, while he yet spoke to them, hurried out of sight. None knew what he could do, but all determined to do something. He passed on to the mighty Mississippi, and there he found the canal was made! The noble steamships rode proudly on its surface, and as its waters dimin-ished, they were again replenished to the brim, by every mountain spring and every stream. Thus do the little rills make the stream, the river, till the united waters of the whole pour ontheir way rejoicing to the glorious ocean. man to the mass, and the mass to the grand tide of human affairs. Each httle mortal, weak and weary though he be, can do something in making up the mighty stream of human events, as it rolls to the ocean of eternity.

THE DISEASE IN POTATOES.—Some diseased potatoes have been examined by a Boston chemist, Mr. J. E. Telemacher, who expresses his opinion through the New-England Farmer, that the disease of the potatoe is a species of fungus, the application of common salt decomposed this Mr. Telemacher recommends that wherever the disease existed this year, common salt be liberally spread upon the soil. It will do no harm, if no good, and the experiment is certainly worth trying.

SHOCKING AFFAIR .- JAMESTOWN, TUESDAY Morsing -Last night, about half past 11, as Nathaniel A. Lowry was returning from his store to his house, some fiend in human shipe met him near his dwelling, and stabbed him wi h a butcher knife, and then immediately fled!

The physicians think Lowry in a dangerous situation. He is stabbed in the abdomen.

Fredonia Censor. Some villains blew up the Iron Sale of Mr. Thomas Gilpin, Me chant of Cincinnati, on the night of the 6th, by the application of powder into the key hole. The Safe was demolished and considerable damage done to the store, but the yillains got no money.

CHARACTER OF THE MISSISSIPPI.-It has been the fashion with travellers to talk of the scenery of the Mississippi as wanting grandeur and beau-ty. Most certainly it has neither. But there is no somery on earth more striking. The dreary and pestilential solitudes, untrodden, save by the feot of the Indian; the absence of all living obfoot of the Indian; the absence of an flowing objects, save the huge alligators which float past apparently asleep, and an occasional vulture, attracted by its impure prey on the surface of the waters; the trees, with a long and hideous drapery of pendant moss, fluttering in the wind; and the giant river, rolling on the vast volume of its dark and turbid waters through the wilderness-form the features of one of the most dismal and impressive landscapes on which the eye of man ever reside. If any one thinks proper to believe that such objects are not in themselves sufficient, I beg to say that I differ with him in point of taste. Rocks and mountains are fine things undoubtedly, but they could add nothing of sublimity to the Mississippi. Polion might be piled on ty to the Mississippi. Pelion might be piled on Ossa, Alps on Andes, and still to the heart and perceptions of the spectator, the Mississippi would be alone. It can brook no rival, and it finds none, No river in the world drains so large a portion e the world's surface. It is the traveller of the earth five thousand miles, more than two thirds the ciameter of the globe. The imagination asks whence come its waters, and whither tend they? They come from the distant regions of a has never yet been planted. They flow into an ocean yet vaster, the whole body of which acknowledges their influence. Through what varie ties of climate have they passed? On what scenes of lonely and sublime magnificence have they gazed? Have they penetrated The heary forests, still the bison's screen, Where staiked the meanmoth to his sheggy lair,

Through paths and alleys, roofed with sombre green
Thousands of year before the silent air
Was pieroed by whiczing shafts of hunters keen?

In short, when the traveller has asked and an swered these questions, and a thousand others, it will be time enough to consider how far the scenery of the Mississippi would be improved by ocks and mountains. He may then be led to doubt whether any great result can be produced by a combination of objects of discordant character, however grand in themselves. The imag nation is perhaps susceptible but of a single powi-erful impression at a time. Sublimity is uniform-ly connected with unity of objects. Beauty may be produced by the happy adaptation of a multi-tude of harmonious details; but the highest suband paramount object, which impresses its own character on everything around. The prevailing character of the Mississippi is that of a solemn gloom. I have trodden the passes of Aip and Apennine, yet never felt how awful a thing is Nature, until I was borne on its waters through regions desolate and uninhabited. Day after day, and night after night, we continued driving ight downward to the south ; our vessel, like some huge domon of the wilderness, bearing fire in her bosom, canopying the 'eternal forest the smoke of her nostrils. How looked the hoary river-god, I know not; nor what thought by a vision so astounding. But the effect on my spirits was such as I have never experienced be-fore or since. Conversations become odicus, and tion. At night I ascended to the highest deck, and lay for hours gazing listlessly on the sky hen by the clanging of the engine. All the leans, I could scarcely have smiled at the best joke in the world, and as for raising a laugh-i would have been quite as easy to quadrate the

A MERICAN ELASTIC SUSEENDERS AND WEB A BING. The autorising perfection attained by the late improvements of the subscriber in compounding India Rubber and adapting it to the manufacture of Elastic Webbing, by the sid of his new machinery warrants bim in saying that the Suspenders now offered for sale by him are the best ever made. Among the advantages he claims in his mode of manufacture over that of Mr. Goodyear, is freedom from the sulpharous armell so inseparable from G. The recoinar and exclusive property of retaining their elasticity, and the great increase of stiffness without additional bulk or weight. It is a common complaint among those who have used Mr. G.'s suspendent that they lose their elasticity after being worn a short time.—This is entirely obviated by Day's process, and dealers in uspenders or webbing are invited to examine the goods at No. 28 Maiden lane. An assartment, embracing all the leading patterns, always on hand and for an eby H. H. DAY, Successor to the Rorbury India Rubber Co., 25 Maiden lane.

JOHN ANDERSON & CO. TOBACCO AND SNUFF

John Anderson No. 3 Walland 3 3 and 3 15 Duano streets, would respectfully inform their friends and the public, that the very liberal patronage besto wed on them for the last year has encouraged them to greater exertions; in branging to perfection the articles of their manufacture. Every improvement that experience has suggested has been adopted, and our success is proved by the award of the highest premium given by the American Institute, at their late Annual Fair in the SCHy, for the hest Tobacco and Shuff. The cause of this success is in to fact of the parrily, as well as the manufacture, of our Tobacco; for the truth of which see the annexed certificate of one of our mest enhance chemists, viz:

I have analyzed a sample of Mr. John Anderson's 'Fine
Cut inone; flow Tobacco,' and find it to be pure Tobacco, without any mix use of those substances with which much of the ordinary Chewing Tobacco, to contaminated.

New-York, April Sth. 1821.

Our Scafinlatti Tarkish and Spenish Smoking Tobacco, we would recommend as being a very superior article. It is packed in small cases of six and ten dozen each, convoient for transportation.

Always on hand, a large and varied agrotiment of Imported Segues, toge-lier with a great variety of manufactured lump Tobacco.

there fire proof qualities beyond all doubt:

The underraigned save this day witnessed the trul of one of Rich's improved patent Salamander Safes in the furnace of the Sen Bird.

The Safe was pinced in the furnace at 19 minutes after 11 of clock A. M. and remained there three hours, constantly st posed to the most intense heat that could be created by the use of pitch hime and cottonwood. It was then taken to the store of Mr. Rich's agent in this city and opened, when they found that the safes was either burned one recorded, and that the safes was either burned one recorded, and that the safes was either burned or recorded, not that the wood work bore no appearance of having been exposed to fire.

The underrigned are convineed that this Safe was subjected to fire.

The underrigned are convineed that this Safe was subjected to greater heat than could possibly set at the burning of any building in this city, however combastible its contents; and they therefore have no heatistion in saying that Rich's Safes are contently secure against the risk of fire, under any circumstances whatever.
